Introduction

My name is Alison Smith. I am currently a Washington Television News Correspondent for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. I have worked for CBC News for more than 30 years in a variety of positions, but primarily as a news anchor and reporter. I am now based in Washington DC covering US news of interest to Canadians. That includes US politics, foreign affairs, the economy and news features that reflect American life.

The CBC

The CBC’s mandate is to provide programming that is predominantly and distinctively Canadian and to actively contribute to the flow and exchange of cultural expression.

CBC News

The CBC News Service was established almost 70 years ago in 1941. As an important component of CBC, the mandate for CBC News mirrors that of the corporation. With its team of experienced and highly professional journalists it is seen as one of the greatest strengths of the CBC. It is Canada’s largest news service with more than 800 journalists employed at home and around the world. It currently has more bureaus across Canada than any other network and 14 outside of the country. There are three bureaus in the US – Washington, New York and Los Angeles. Other locations include London, Paris, Jerusalem, Mexico City, Moscow, Beijing, Shanghai, Nairobi, Bangkok and Kandahar.

From the inception of the news service, CBC news and current affairs journalists have won international recognition for their work. A list of international awards covering the time period at issue here is attached to this testimony (Exhibit CDN-2-A).

CBC Newsworld

CBC Newsworld is a 24-hour cable news network, wholly owned by the CBC. I was an anchor for the network when it launched in 1989. Since its inception, CBC Newsworld has established itself as an important element in the CBC’s overall service to Canadians. It is the world’s third-oldest television service of this nature, after CNN in the United States and Sky News in the United Kingdom. It provides the more than 10 million Canadians who receive it with a domestic alternative enabling them to keep up to date with national and international events. Newsworld’s schedule is comprised of live news programs and documentaries.
CBC News & Current Affairs Programming

The National is the CBC’s flagship television newscast. However, as you will note in the schedules attached to Janice de Freitas’ testimony (Exhibit CDN-1-I), The National, is not the only news program on CBC. Other programs include: CBC Morning, Local News, Saturday Report and Sunday Report. In addition, the schedules list the numerous current affairs series that CBC broadcasts. These include: CBC News: Disclosure, Venture, the fifth estate, Marketplace, and Witness.

Description Of Programs

News

The National: As I stated earlier The National is the CBC’s flagship television newscast. It airs nightly at 10 p.m. on the CBC main network and at 9 and 11 p.m. on CBC Newsworld. The program itself is a Canadian institution. It originated in 1954 – not long after CBC Television began. It has long been the program Canadians turn to when big news events occur. The National focuses on major Canadian and international news. The format includes more than twenty minutes of news and completes the hour with current affairs. The current affairs segments may include long form news features, documentaries and interviews.

CBC News: Morning: is a live morning news program across all Canadian time zones. It sets the agenda for the news day – covering breaking news from Canada and around the world featuring reports and interviews from across Canada and around the globe.

CBC News: Today: is a dynamic, live news program that airs at midday, a very busy news time. The team keeps on top of the latest breaking Canadian and international news and tracks up-to-the-minute developments in stories. (This news slot was introduced in 2003.)

Coverage of top local news is pre-eminent at the dinner hour (6 p.m.). Currently called CBC News at 6, during the time period of these hearings it was alternatively called Local News and Canada Now.

On weekends we keep our viewers informed with Saturday Report, CBC News: Sunday and to wrap it up CBC News: Sunday Night.

Current Affairs

CBC has a long, proud and distinguished history of current affairs programming.

For over a quarter of a century, the fifth estate has been Canada's premier investigative documentary program. It has won 243 awards, including an Oscar for best documentary, three international Emmy Awards and dozens of honours from The New York and Columbus International film and video.
festivals. In 2001, the fifth estate won a prestigious Michener Award for meritorious public service journalism.

Another pillar of our reputation rests on Marketplace. Now 35 years old, it is the trusted consumer watchdog of the CBC. It weeds out wrongdoings against consumers, and has influenced companies and the government to change policies and products.

For more than two decades our business series Venture reported on business news and took viewers behind the scenes, into the factory or the corporate headquarters.

Mansbridge One on One is a weekly interview program hosted by our award-winning news anchor Peter Mansbridge. The guests include politicians, journalists, arts and sports figures and newsmakers behind the issues and news of the day.

Other current affairs programming on air during 2000-2003 included: Undercurrents, Disclosure, Witness and The Passionate Eye as well as topical specials.

Responsibilities in 2000 to 2003

During the time period in question for these hearings, 2000 to 2003, I worked as the host and anchor of Sunday Report, the evening network newscast. At the same time, I was a Senior Correspondent for the National, and the primary back-up anchor for The National.

It was a time of dramatic news. September 11, 2001, of course, continues to define news events today. I was sent to New York the morning of 9/11 to report and anchor coverage from there for the next ten days.

In January of 2003, I became the host and anchor of CBC News Morning – the network morning news program on both CBC and CBC Newsworld.

My assignment to host CBC News Morning was a direct consequence of the events that followed 9/11 and the run-up to the US invasion of Iraq in March of 2003. Much of the daily breaking news in Iraq occurred during our morning run. Our program covered the developments live and set much of the news agenda for the day. Exhibit CDN-2-B is a short video featuring news stories I have worked on.

Distinctive Programming

CBC News, like the rest of CBC, is mandated to provide distinctive programming for its primary audience – Canadians. This home-grown distinctiveness ultimately distinguishes it from American newscasts. Home-grown, however, does not mean home-focussed. We know Canadians especially value international news; consequently our news programming responds to this desire. Another distinction is that our network television news - The National, is an hour long – compared to half an hour for most American newscasts. That offers more time for context and explanation. It is evident from our program schedules that we allocate over 20% of our broadcast week to news and current affairs programs. However, the primary difference is, of course, our perspective. Whether the story is about health care, US politics, or the latest crisis in the Middle East, we are Canadians telling stories to a Canadian audience and that is necessarily reflected in what appears in our broadcasts. Our coverage has been praised both at home and abroad for its informed, respectful and balanced treatment.

American Audience

Americans living near the border are able to watch CBC programming, including our News and Current Affairs programming, either over the air or when they subscribe to a local cable system that retransmits one of our signals. We know of other circumstances when viewers have had access to our news programming through American broadcasters, including C-SPAN. Most notably this occurred on September 11, 2001, when they (and other American broadcast services) carried the CBC’s coverage of the September 11, 2001 attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. C-SPAN has also carried CBC’s coverage of major events affecting Canadians, including: Canadian federal elections, the death and state funeral of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the power outage crisis in summer 2003, and American elections. Recently, CBC’s coverage of the Presidential Inauguration was carried on C-SPAN3.

Conclusion

CBC News has been in the business of gathering and delivering news to make sense of our chaotic world for over 50 years. We do it well. We do it distinctively. We produce for a Canadian audience that we know has a thirst for international news. It is my personal experience that Americans who view our news and current affairs programs are impressed with the professionalism, quality and balance of our broadcasts.

Introduction

I am Manager of Rights Administration for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) at the Head Office in Ottawa. I have worked for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation since 1980. For the last 15 years, I have served as Chairman of the Canadian Claimants Group (CCG). Before assuming my current position, I spent nine years in CBC’s television program distribution department eventually managing the Educational Sales unit. Those responsibilities called for me to be familiar with the English television network’s programming, and rights administration.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is Canada’s national public broadcaster. It has been a participant in these cable royalty proceedings since their very inception and is the founding member of the Canadian Claimants Group. The CBC, through its Rights Administration Department, continues to manage the Canadian Claimants Group. One of my primary responsibilities for the last 18 years has been supervision and administration of responsibilities related to the U.S. cable retransmission claims of Canadians. Most recently this has included preparing this direct case.

Today, I am appearing in several capacities. First, in my role as Chairman of the CCG, I am here to provide an overview of our claim, to provide background information on our members and to introduce our other witnesses. Second, I am here in my capacity as an employee of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Because most of the Canadian stations retransmitted in the U.S. as distant signals are either CBC English or CBC French network stations, I will provide an overview on both CBC television networks. Finally, I will sponsor cable carriage and royalty data that we have obtained from Cable Data Corporation that reflects the increase in carriage and royalties paid by Form 3 cable systems for the distant retransmission of Canadian television stations.
The Nature of Our Claim

CBC and other Canadian television stations are long-established components of both the over-the-air and cable television markets along the U.S.-Canada border. The composition of the Canadian Claimant Group has changed over the years. In the early royalty proceedings, the CCG was comprised primarily of the CBC, private Canadian broadcasters, their programming affiliates and a few independent production companies. More recently, the members of the CCG are increasingly Canadian film and television production companies (commonly referred to as “program suppliers”).

The Phase I claim of the Canadian Claimants Group encompasses the non-U.S. programming shown on all distant Canadian television signals. Our claimant group, however, is conceptually different from the other Phase I claimants who are mainly defined by the similar nature of their programming (e.g., only sports programming or only religious programming, or only broadcasters or only program suppliers). Our group is comprised of broadcasters (both public and private), and Canadian program suppliers. Additionally, our claim applies to Canadian network and local programs of every type and variety: sports, entertainment, children’s, news, public affairs, etc.

Our Witnesses

Most of the programming on Canadian signals is Canadian. However we recognize that our signals also contain programming claimed by the Joint Sports Claimants and the American Program Suppliers. Consequently, in preparing our direct case, we have once again focused on demonstrating the relative value of the programming types on Canadian distant signals. To this end, we have conducted four annual surveys of cable operators who carried distant Canadian signals. Professor Debra Ringold, will make a return visit to Washington to present the results of those studies. As Dr. Ringold will testify, the results of the surveys are consistent with past results. The U.S. cable operators that carry distant Canadian signals attribute nearly 60% of the value of the Canadian signals to the Canadian programming on those stations and the remainder to the programming of the Joint Sports Claimants and Program Suppliers.

To provide first hand exposure to Canadian television we will present two witnesses who represent different genres of programs, Alison Smith and Stephen Stohn. Alison Smith is a CBC news correspondent currently based in Washington, D.C. She is a professional journalist who has worked with CBC for over 30 years and served in numerous capacities. She is appearing to provide an overview of the CBC’s network news operations. Stephen Stohn is President of Epitome Pictures, one of our CCG program suppliers. Epitome has developed a strong international reputation as a source of exceptional programming. He is appearing to provide the perspective of our program supplier members.

The Canadian Claimants

Canadian Claimants run the gamut from very small production houses to national broadcasters. There is neither time nor space for them all to appear at these proceedings so I am sponsoring certain information that I have collected that identifies and describes them. Attached to my testimony as Exhibit CDN-1-A are lists of Canadian Claimant Group members for 2000 through 2003. Exhibit CDN-1-B contains descriptive company profiles. Canadian programming is popular in the United States and internationally, as is demonstrated by the Canadian members’ success licensing their programming in the U.S. and elsewhere. Exhibit CDN-1-C is an informal sample of the numerous Canadian properties licensed to U.S. television services by a selection of our members. I collected this information to demonstrate the demand for Canadian programming in the U.S. cable and broadcasting marketplaces. The exhibit indicates a range of clients in the U.S., with an important market being cable networks. We believe this is important evidence of the appeal of Canadian television programming to U.S. cable operators, since they are the relevant marketplace for both cable network programming and distant signal programming.

I also requested that our members supply information about awards they received for their programs and sample descriptive brochures. Exhibit CDN-1-D reports on some of the international awards won by Canadian Claimants, including an Academy Award and several Emmy Awards. Additional award information is included with the testimony of our other witnesses. Exhibit CDN-1-E (the material is bound separately) is a collection of promotional material (program descriptions) received from our members, with an accompanying index.

Our Distant Signals

The members of the CCG all had programming that was carried on Canadian signals retransmitted in the U.S. by Form 3 cable systems during the four years from 2000 through 2003. The Canadian signals carried in these years are listed below along with their network affiliations and their broadcast language:

Also attached as Exhibit CDN-1-F are maps that illustrate where these distant Canadian signals were retransmitted in the United States. These maps are grouped by network affiliation. They show each Canadian station and the State where it was retransmitted by a Form 3 cable system, as reported on cable systems’ Statements of Account during 2000 through 2003.

Exhibit CDN-1-G is made up of two maps that were generated on the U.S. Census Bureau web site and are based on information from the 2000
Census. Entitled “Percent of Persons of French (except Basque) Ancestry: 2000” and “Percent of Persons of French Canadian Ancestry: 2000,” they display the concentration of persons by state in the United States who are of French or French Canadian Ancestry. These maps demonstrate that high concentrations of these populations are found in the New England states where all the distant retransmission of French-language Canadian signals occurs.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation – Radio Canada

As noted before, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is Canada’s national public broadcaster, one of its largest and most important cultural institutions. It provides services on television, radio, the internet, satellite radio and digital audio. Our programming is in English and French as well as eight aboriginal languages and nine other languages including Spanish, Russian and Mandarin on RCI, our international radio service.

Due to the focus of these proceedings I am confining my comments to the two free-over-the-air television networks we operate, one in English and one in French. These networks are mandated to provide programming that is predominantly and distinctively Canadian and of the highest quality.

The English Network

The English Television Network is one of the two national television networks operated by CBC. In 2000 through 2003, the English network consisted of thirty-five (35) stations, from coast to coast. Sixteen (16) of these stations were owned and operated by CBC and nineteen (19) were affiliates. Affiliates are privately owned stations that carry a stated number of hours of CBC programming. Page one of Exhibit CDN-1-H is a list of the CBC English Television Network Owned and Affiliated Stations.

Broadcast hours vary across locations, but CBC stations broadcast seven (7) days a week from as early as 6:00 a.m. to as late as 2:30 a.m. Special events such as the Olympics can extend our day considerably due to our sports producers’ commitment to live coverage. Together, CBC stations and affiliates reach 99% of the Canadian population.
CBC programs are made in Canada or acquired from other countries. Exhibit CDN-1-I contains English network broadcast schedules for the 2000/2001, 2001/2002, 2002/2003 and 2003/2004 television seasons. The “shaded” blocks indicate that a program was produced in the U.S. or “belongs” to an American claimant group for the purposes of this proceeding. The schedules illustrate that the majority of our programs are Canadian. As a general rule, a large majority of the programming on CBC signals falls within the claim of the Canadian Claimants Group.

CBC programming is by mandate predominantly and distinctively Canadian. A direct consequence of this is a schedule that regularly offers American viewers a unique programming alternative. This includes:

- Original and distinctive drama programs that CBC produces, co-produces, develops or licenses.
- Sports programs not ordinarily available on conventional television in the United States, such as amateur international sport competitions (these often involve American athletes), soccer, curling, show jumping and Canadian football.
- Hockey, tennis, golf, baseball games and events that don’t feature American teams or athletes. (CBC sports broadcasts generally include not only the event, but popular commentary segments such as Hockey Night in Canada’s “Coaches’ Corner” featuring Don Cherry and Ron McLean.)
- Canadian children’s programming that is commercial-free and non-violent
- Featured prime-time scheduling of a diverse selection of art and cultural programming, such as ballet, operas, and theatrical performances, not generally seen on U.S. commercial television.
- News and current affairs programs reporting on Canada and the world from a Canadian perspective, that is appreciated not only because of that difference but because it informs Americans of events in Canada that are of interest to many, particularly those living along the Canadian border. (Correspondent Alison Smith will present separate testimony on CBC’s news programming.)
In the span of time covered by these proceedings there were numerous special programming events. These included the production and broadcast of:

- The epic Canada: A People’s History.

- Memorial documentary and drama programming following the death of former Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

- Over 500 hours of coverage of two Olympics (Sydney, Australia in 2000, and Salt Lake City in 2002); our Olympic coverage has frequently been praised by American viewers who especially liked the significant amount of “live event” rather than tape-delayed coverage, and who appreciate CBC’s less theatrical reporting style.

- Special programming relating to CBC’s 50th Anniversary.

- The 2002 FIFA World Cup.

- In-depth coverage of the tragic events of September 11, 2001.

Some international awards won by CBC’s English Television Network are listed in Exhibit CDN-1-J.

I also have a video (DVD) that was produced to launch English Television’s then “new” season for the fall of 2002-2003, our 50th Anniversary year. This is available as Exhibit CDN-1-K, with an accompanying log of the programs featured on it. The video shows programming that is representative of the type of programming found on CBC’s English Television Network during the period covered by this proceeding.

The French Network

Radio-Canada is the name used by our French Television Network. In 2000-2003 it was composed of eight (8) owned and operated stations and five (5) affiliated stations located across the nation. The network operates entirely in French. The affiliate relationships for French TV are similar in commitment to the English structure. Page two of Exhibit CDN-1-H is a list of the CBC French Television Network’s Owned and Affiliated Stations.

The French network (which also celebrated its 50th anniversary in 2002-2003) operates under the same mandate as the English Network: to be predominantly and distinctively Canadian. It broadcasts an equally wide spectrum of programming, some it produces and others it acquires from the many Quebec based claimant members. There is, of course, the added distinction, and benefit for French speaking Americans, that the programs are created as original French-language productions. Some international awards won by CBC’s French Television Network are listed in Exhibit CDN-1-L. Attached as Exhibit CDN-1-M, are French Television Network broadcast schedules for the 2000/2001, 2001/2002, 2002/2003 and 2003/2004 television seasons. Again, the “shaded” blocks indicate where a program is attributable to an American claimant.

Distant Carriage of Canadian Signals by U.S. Cable Systems

The next set of exhibits in my testimony is based on data obtained from Cable Data Corporation (CDC). The data are traditionally referred to as “carriage data” because they are based on the carriage of broadcast signals on a distant basis by U.S. cable systems. CDC compiles this database from the information provided by cable systems when they file their semi-annual Statements of Account with the Copyright Office. The CCG and other claimant groups have relied on this data for distribution proceedings for many years. CDC allocates royalties to particular signals using the information provided in the Statements of Accounts.

Our carriage data exhibits focus only on data from Statements of Accounts filed by “Form 3” cable systems which are the largest cable systems in the U.S. Historically, in these proceedings, the Copyright Royalty Tribunal and Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panels focused only on information about Form 3 distant signals. Form 3 royalties make up the majority of all royalties paid. According to CDC data, over the four years at issue, the Form 3 systems paid about 97% of all royalties paid by U.S. cable systems for the carriage of Distant Signals. In addition, Form 3 systems are the only systems that report carriage information with enough detail to allow a determination of which types of signals and programming are responsible for generating the royalties. We continue this approach so that current carriage and royalty data can be compared to prior years to demonstrate changed circumstances.¹

¹ It should be noted that during the years at issue in these proceedings there was a change in the royalty structure. As shown on the website of the Copyright Office, effective with the 2000-2 accounting period, the amount of semi-annual gross receipts necessary to qualify as a Form 3 system rose from $292,000 to $379,600. At the same time, the royalty rates for the base rate fee and the minimum fee were increased. Such changes have occurred several times during the existence of the cable compulsory license.
The data that are presented in these exhibits generally cover 1998 through 2003. The 1998 and 1999 data are presented to establish the foundation from which we show changed circumstances. In some cases, where it is necessary to take a longer term view, we present data going back further. Generally, the data for the years 1999 and earlier are based on CDC data presented by the CCG in the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding. The data for the years 2000 through 2003 was received from Cable Data Corporation in the fall and winter of 2008-2009. Unless otherwise noted, all data in these exhibits is based on the carriage of signals on a distant basis.

Royalties Paid for the Carriage of Canadian Distant Signals

According to CDC data, cable systems have paid increasingly more in royalties for Canadian signals each year since 1998. For example, by 2003, base royalties paid for Canadian distant signals had increased 59% from the average paid for such signals in 1998 and 1999. By contrast, base royalties for all other signal types had increased only 16%. In fact, the amount of royalties paid for Canadian signals grew disproportionately to the growth of the other signal types during the same period.

Exhibit CDN-1-N presents the royalties figures for 1998 through 2003. The five pages of Exhibit CDN-1-N show the allocation of royalty fees derived from the retransmission of distant signals by U.S. cable systems. There is a table for each of the three types of fees: base, 3.75% and Syndicated Exclusivity (Syndex) royalties and one that shows the totals of the three types of royalties. Syndex data is shown in this exhibit simply for the sake of completeness. The CCG does not claim any right to receive a share of Syndex funds.

The tables on the first four pages of this exhibit show the royalties paid each accounting period for Canadian signals and for the combined total for all other types of signals (Educational, Network, Independent, Low Power, and Mexican). They are broken into two sections. At the top are the fees for each accounting period in the last and current proceedings. Included are the averages for the four accounting periods of last proceeding. On the right side, the tables show the percentage change for each accounting period from the average for the last proceeding. Below that are the same data presented on an annual basis (determined by adding the numbers for the two accounting periods in each year). In this and other exhibits, we choose to show relative change of Canadian signal data and relative change of data for all other signal types combined to illustrate that though both generally grew from the time of the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding, the growth of Canadian signals has moved at a much different rate.

The fifth page of Exhibit CDN-1-N looks at certain aspects of the minimum fees paid by cable operators. Form 3 cable systems are required to pay a minimum fee (equal to the cost of retransmitting a distant signal as the first full Distant Signal Equivalent (DSE) on the base royalty fee payment scale.\(^2\) If the system carries no distant signals or less than one full DSE of distant signals, the system pays the minimum fee. Page five of the exhibit addresses the amount of minimum fees paid by systems with no distant carriage at all (sometimes called “zero DSE systems”). (This exhibit is not intended to track or document all minimum fees, such as those paid by systems carrying more than zero but less than one DSE of distant signals.) This exhibit shows that starting in 1998-1, the first period of the last proceeding, there was a sudden and very dramatic increase in the number of systems carrying no distant signals but paying the minimum fees. Comparing the period covered by the 1990-1992 Distribution Proceeding to the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding, there was a very pronounced change in the payment of these fees while in contrast there was relatively minor change from the period covered by the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding to the current period.

Exhibit CDN-1-O is made up of a set of three charts that graphically show the relative growth since the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding in distant total, base and 3.75% royalties paid for Canadian signals compared to all other signals types. The percentages are the same as those shown in Exhibit CDN-1-N. The charts illustrate that fees paid for Canadian signals grew much more rapidly than fees paid for all other signals.

Exhibit CDN-1-P is a one page summary of the amount of royalties paid for Canadian signals in 1998 through 2003 for base and 3.75% fees. The tables also show the fees paid for Canadian signals as a percentages of fees paid for all signals. This is calculated by dividing royalties paid for Canadian signals by the royalties paid for all signals. Table 1, below, shows that the percentages of base and 3.75% Royalties paid for Canadian Signals has increased substantially since the last proceeding.

\(^2\) Form 1 and Form 2 systems do not pay this minimum fee.

Exhibit CDN-4-Q, entitled “Total Distant Royalties Paid by Form 3 Systems for Canadians Signals,” shows the sum of total distant royalties paid for Canadian distant signals during the years 2000 through 2003, broken out by signal. The exhibit also shows how those royalties compare as a proportion of all distant royalties paid for Canadian signals. Notably, the first four signals of the 24 on the list account for more than 77% of all royalties paid for Canadian signals.3

Subscriber Instances and Instances of Carriage

Another way to examine growth in the carriage of Canadian signals is to look at “Subscriber Instances” and “Instances of Carriage.” Subscriber Instances measure the number of cable system subscribers who have access to a distant signal. In contrast, “Instances of Carriage” are the number of times a signal or signal type is carried by a cable system on a distant basis. The number of Instances of Carriage tells nothing about the size of each cable system. Thus, whether a cable system has 2000 subscribers or 2,000,000 subscribers, the system would count as one Instance of Carriage. As cable systems merge and consolidate, the number of Instances of Carriage for signals on those systems may decrease without any effect on the total number of Subscriber Instances.

3 The royalty numbers in this exhibit need two qualifications: (1) the numbers include a small amount of Syndex royalties which the CCG does not claim but which were attributed to Canadian signals by the cable system operators when they completed their Statements of Account; (2) the sum of these numbers differ from the sum of those reported in Exhibit CDN-1-N by approximately $68,000 because of the way in which Cable Data Corporation reports the royalties in its database. These two qualifications do not meaningfully affect the exhibit’s illustration of the relative share of all royalties paid for each Canadian signal during 2000 through 2003.
Exhibit CDN-1-R, entitled “Subscriber Instances” presents the number of cable television subscribers receiving signals retransmitted on a distant basis by U.S. cable systems. It is important to note that the number of subscribers presented in this table is cumulative. For example, if a cable system has 10,000 subscribers and carries one Canadian and four independent signals on a distant basis in a given accounting period, CDC allocates 10,000 subscribers to Canadian signals for that period and 40,000 to independent signals. While the result is that the total number of Subscriber Instances reported by CDC exceeds the number of people who actually subscribe, the Subscriber Instances as reported by CDC are an accurate depiction of the number of people who can see a particular distant signal in the US and, in the aggregate, present a reasonable basis for comparing the relative reach of each signal type. This exhibit shows that the relative reach of Canadian signals, as measured by the number of Subscriber Instances, has grown at a rate that exceeds the growth of other signal types.

Exhibit CDN-1-S, entitled “Instances of Carriage” presents a table showing the number of times Canadian signals and all other signals were retransmitted on a distant basis by U.S. cable systems during each accounting period beginning in 1998. As can be seen, Canadian signals make up a very small portion of all Instances of Carriage. In fact, Canadian signals consistently make up only about 2% of all Instances of Carriage from 1998 through 2003, even though by 2003, those signals were responsible for 4.7% of base royalties. Though Instances of Carriage of Canadian distant signals have decreased since the last proceeding, they have done so at a smaller rate than the decline in Instances of Carriage of other signal types.

Exhibit CDN-1-T is a set of charts examining the change in growth of Canadian signal carriage by combining information about Subscriber Instances and Instances of Carriage. These charts show that as the absolute number of Instances of Carriage have fallen for Canadian distant signals (i.e., slightly fewer signals are being retransmitted now than in the last proceeding) the number of people with access to Canadian signals, as measured by subscriber instances, has increased. This increase is not just the result of growth in the overall cable market nor simply the result of merger. The charts show that the growth is greater for Canadian signals than other signals types experienced in the same period.

Page 1 of the exhibit compares Instances of Carriage over a 20 year period to the number of Subscriber Instances per Instances of Carriage. The time period subject to the current proceeding is marked in yellow. The graph on the left, for Canadian signals, shows that while the number of Instances of Carriage decreased over time, the number of Subscriber Instances per Instance of Carriage increased. In fact, the greatest increase has come during the years covered by this proceeding. In contrast, the graph on the right, for all other distant signals, shows that while Instances of Carriage have come down dramatically, the number of Subscriber Instances per Instance of Carriage have changed very modestly in that time, decreasing somewhat in the current period.

Page 2 of the exhibit compares Instances of Carriage to total distant subscriber instances over the same twenty year period. The chart on the left, for “Canadian Signals,” shows that even as the Instances of Carriage have decreased, the total number of Subscriber Instances for Canadian distant signals has increased. The graph on the right, for all other distant signals shows that historically the change in Subscriber Instances for non-Canadian distant signals closely tracks the number of Instances of Carriage for those distant signals.

Both exhibits show that the reach of Canadian distant signals grew disproportionately to the movement of all other distant signals.

Fees per Instance of Carriage and per Subscriber Instance

Another way to look at the changed circumstances is to compare the amount of fees paid per Subscriber Instance and per Instance of Carriage for Canadian signals and for all other signal types. In both cases, growth since 1998-1999 has been greater for Canadian signals than for other signal types.

Exhibit CDN-1-U, entitled “Relative Change in Total Fees Paid per Subscriber Instance” graphs the relative change in fees per Subscriber Instance since the 1998-1999 Proceeding for Canadian signals and all other signals. The total distant fees paid per Subscriber Instance can be determined by dividing the fees paid for the signal type each year by the number of Subscriber Instances for that year. This chart shows the relative change in those numbers by year since the last proceeding.

The chart illustrates that while the royalties paid per Subscriber Instances have grown for all signals since the last proceeding, they have grown faster for the Canadian signals than for the other signal types.
Exhibit CDN-4-V, entitled “Relative Change in Total Fees Paid per Instance of Carriage” graphs the relative change in fees per Instance of Carriage since the 1998-1999 Proceeding for Canadian signals and all other signals. This chart shows a relative comparison of the change in what cable system operators pay for each Instance of Carriage.

The chart shows that while the royalties paid per Instance of Carriage have grown for all signals since the last proceeding, they have grown faster for the Canadian signals than for all other signal types.

Conclusion

The quality, quantity, breadth and depth of Canadian programming provide unique enrichment to the lives of Americans living along the Canadian border. They are entertained and informed with a perspective that is decidedly different from that found on American broadcast and cable television programming. To American cable system operators, the carriage of Canadian distant signals is, therefore, an easy way to bring diversity to the channel lineup, enhancing the cable operators’ ability to attract and retain subscribers.

The substantial growth of Canadian signal carriage is tangible evidence of the value cable operators place on the Canadian signals. The data track the actual conduct of cable operators who select distant signals to carry and then pay substantial royalties for those signals. The carriage data evidence demonstrates changed circumstances by showing that cable operators have paid a larger percentage of their royalties for Canadian signals in the years 2000-2003 than they paid in the period covered by the 1998-1999 Distribution Proceeding.

Canadian signal carriage growth relative to other signal types, demonstrated by the data reported by cable systems and aggregated by CDC, shows that there is something intrinsically valuable about Canadian signals. As the cable operator survey shows, the cable operators themselves attribute the majority of that value to CCG programming.

Mr./Ms. __________
Cable System Manager
Cablevision Services, Inc.

Dear Mr./Ms. __________:

Westat, a research firm located in Rockville, Maryland is conducting a telephone interview study of the factors important to cable systems in their decisions to carry television signals. This letter is to alert you that your cable system has been selected for inclusion in our study.

We realize that your time is valuable and that you are probably called frequently to participate in surveys. Because of this, we have designed a short survey, (it takes less than ten minutes), and we are offering each study respondent a $50.00 honorarium.

One of our researchers will be calling in the next few days. At that time, you will be asked if it is convenient to conduct the interview or whether we should call back at another time. We will be happy to conduct the interview at your convenience, day or night.

Since we have selected a small sample, each response is important to the success of our study. We look forward to speaking with you about this important project.

Cordially,

The sum must total to 100 percent. This means that if you felt that the seven programming categories were of equal value, you would assign each a little under 15 percentage points."

The Value of Canadian Programming to Cable Systems
In the United States: 2000-2003

by

Gary T. Ford and Debra J. Ringold

I. INTRODUCTION

This report discusses the objectives, methodology, and results of five surveys of United States cable system operators who retransmitted Canadian television stations as distant signals between 2000 and 2003. These studies were commissioned by the Canadian Claimants group and were conducted annually each of these years.

This report includes the following four sections:

II. Executive Summary

III. Methodology

IV. Results

V. Conclusion

1 Resumes for Dr. Ford and Dr. Ringold are provided in Appendix 1.
II. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

OBJECTIVES:

1. The primary objective of this research was to estimate the value of Canadian programming on Canadian distant signals retransmitted by Form 3 cable system operators in the United States.

2. A second, and less important, objective was to determine the relative importance of other types of programming on three different types of distant signals: superstations or WTBS; Canadian stations; and United States independent stations.

METHODOLOGY:

3. In each of the years 2000 to 2003, a survey was conducted of the eligible population of Form 3 cable systems retransmitting either a distant English-language or distant French-language Canadian signal. The response rates were 80%, 60%, 58%, and 63%, respectively. These relatively high response rates make nonresponse bias unlikely.

4. The surveys were conducted with the persons responsible for deciding which distant signals their cable systems retransmit. On average, respondents were in this position at his/her cable system approximately eight years and thus, were experienced in making these decisions (Table 4). Participants were also queried as to their program budget responsibilities. Ninety-five percent of the respondents identified themselves as the individual responsible for making program budget decisions or recommendations.

5. The surveys asked about the value of seven different types of programming carried on a Canadian signal randomly chosen from those Canadian signals retransmitted by the cable system: (1) live professional and college team sports, excluding Canadian Football League games; (2) Canadian-produced news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs; (3) U.S. syndicated series, movies, and specials; (4) sports programming such as the Olympics, Canadian Football League games, skating, skiing, tennis, and auto racing; (5) Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials; (6) Canadian-produced children’s programming; and (7) other programming. This approach allowed a signal-specific determination of the relative value of Canadian-produced programming compared to programming produced by other claimants.

6. Similar categories of programming shown on a randomly chosen superstation or WTBS and a randomly chosen U.S. independent station carried by the respondents' systems were also evaluated to reduce the chances that respondents would guess the survey purpose or sponsor.

7. While the categories used to describe superstation or WTBS, Canadian, and independent programming are reasonably analogous, differences due to the Canadian network programming offered by Canadian signals do exist. In addition, questionnaire forms reflect the language in which Canadian programming is retransmitted by a particular signal. To accommodate the change in status of WTBS, in 2000 through 2002, one of two questionnaire forms was used for each of the English-language and French-language Canadian signals. These forms differ in terms of how superstation or WTBS carriage was verified. One form anticipates carriage of one or more distant superstations and/or independent stations. The other form anticipates the carriage of WTBS. In 2003, we returned to two forms, i.e., English-language and French-language, after it became apparent that the extra WTBS verification step was unnecessary.
RESULTS:

8. For the years 2000 to 2003, respondents estimated that Canadian-produced programming accounted for approximately 59%, 64%, 59%, and 59%, respectively, of the value of all programming shown on Canadian signals (Table 1).

9. For these same years, live professional and college team sports shown on the Canadian signals were valued at approximately 26%, 26%, 31%, and 28%, respectively (Table 1).

10. U.S. syndicated series and movies shown on the Canadian signals were valued, during these years, at approximately 14%, 9%, 10%, and 10%, respectively (Table 1).

11. For superstations, live professional and college sports were valued at approximately 30%, 29%, 29%, and 25%, for the years 2000 through 2003 (Table 2). For independent stations, live professional and college sports were valued at approximately 29% in 2000, 30% in 2001, 23% in 2002, and 30% in 2003 (Table 3).

12. Movies and syndicated series were valued at approximately 40%, 43%, 39%, and 43% on superstations in 2000 through 2003 (Table 2). Movies and syndicated series were valued at approximately 31%, 31%, 38%, and 31% on independent stations during the same period (Table 3). Both superstation and independent station evaluations are substantially higher than the 14%, 9%, 10%, and 10% values reported for U.S. movies and syndicated series on Canadian signals (Table 1).
CONCLUSION:

13. In our opinion, these results indicate that cable system operators who retransmit Canadian signals do so primarily for their unique Canadian programming, but also value the live professional and college team sports carried on these signals. U.S. syndicated shows and movies on Canadian signals appear to have less value to cable system operators.

During this period, Canadian programming constituted about 60% of the total programming value provided by imported Canadian signals.

III. METHODOLOGY

From a methodological perspective, the survey objectives of estimating the value of Canadian programming required attention to three important factors. First, during the period under study, Canadian signals were retransmitted by up to 65 eligible cable systems. Because the annual populations of cables systems are relatively small, it was important to develop a methodology that would maximize the number of completed interviews. Relatively high response rates make significant bias in the results due to nonresponse unlikely. Therefore, maximizing the survey response rates was important.

Second, any survey runs the risk of producing biased results if respondents detect the purpose of the survey or guess the survey sponsor. For this reason, it was important to design the survey questionnaire and use interviewing techniques that masked the purpose of the survey and its sponsor.

Third, Canadian signals carry Canadian programming as well as programming copyrighted by other claimants participating in the cable copyright royalty distribution proceedings. Thus, it was necessary to develop an approach that would allow us to estimate the value of Canadian programming relative to other programming carried on the signal. The methodological decisions made regarding each of these issues are discussed below.
Procedures used to increase survey response rates. An audit and screening study of Form 3 cable systems known to have retransmitted Canadian programming during 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003 identified 65, 65, 65, and 63 eligible cable systems, respectively. If cable systems were found to retransmit both an English- and French-language Canadian signal, the system was interviewed with the French-language version of the questionnaire, due to the smaller number of French-language signals. Because these populations were small, it was necessary to attempt to interview respondents from each of these cable systems.

No respondent was interviewed more than twice in one year about retransmitting Canadian signals. This decision was made to reduce both the chance of guessing the purpose of the survey and to minimize redundancy in responses. Thus, to be eligible for the 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003 studies, Form 3 systems had to have carried Canadian signals in the study year and the respondent could not participate in more than two interviews. To increase response rates the following procedures were used:

1. Each of the cable systems was contacted by telephone to verify the name of the person (or persons) responsible for “deciding which television stations your cable system offers” for their cable system. A copy of the screening form that was used for these telephone contacts is attached as Appendix 2.

2. The person responsible for deciding which distant signals to retransmit for cable systems importing a Canadian signal was then faxed an appropriate survey notification letter. During the years 2000 to 2002, this letter informed him/her that an interviewer would be calling in the next week regarding a “…study of the factors important to cable systems in their decisions to carry distant television signals” if the system carried a distant superstation and/or an independent station as well as a Canadian signal or a “…study of the factors important to cable systems in their decisions to carry television signals” if the system carried WTBS as well as a Canadian signal. During the year 2003, only one letter was used and it indicated that the study was concerned with “…factors important to cable systems in their decisions to carry television signals.” It also mentioned that the interview would take “less than ten minutes” and that they would be paid a $50.00 honorarium. Those responsible for responding for two cable systems were promised a $100.00 honorarium. A copy of this notification letter is provided in Appendix 3.

3. The survey research contractors\(^2\) were instructed to continue attempts to contact potential respondents until the interview was completed or the respondent definitely refused. Virtually all of the completed interviews were accomplished during the first or second direct communication with the respondent. Other call attempts were associated with efforts to identify, reach, and/or schedule the qualified respondent. To ensure standardization in the interviews, Westat and BAIGlobal assigned the same interviewer to complete all interviews in all years. Both Westat and BAIGlobal personnel were experienced in surveying professional and managerial participants.

Because of the efforts made to identify a specific person to interview, the survey notification letter, the honorarium, and the efforts made to conveniently schedule interviews, overall response rates were relatively high. Response rates were 80%, 60%, 58%, and 63% for 2000 to 2003, respectively. These response rates make nonresponse bias less likely. Details concerning the response rates are provided in Appendix 4.

Methodology used to disguise purpose of surveys. It is well known that survey answers may contain bias if the respondent can guess the purpose of the survey or its sponsor. To prevent that type of bias, four safeguards were built into the research design:

\(^2\) Westat served as the research contractor in 2000, 2002, and 2003. In 2000, it was the fifth largest marketing research organization in the United States. Westat is known for its expertise in executing survey research projects for agencies of the federal government and a variety of large commercial clients (Honomichl 2003, 2006). In 2001, BAIGlobal, a subsidiary of Market Facts, Inc. served as the research contractor. Market Facts was the ninth largest marketing research organization in the United States that year and provides worldwide custom marketing research services to major multinational corporations (Honomichl 2003, 2006).
1. At no time was the survey sponsor identified or the purpose of the study conveyed to potential respondents or to the interviewers at Westat or BAIGlobal. The survey notification letter was sent from Westat and BAIGlobal on its stationery. Since the surveys were "double-blind," the chances that the interviewer would inadvertently cue a respondent to the survey purpose or sponsor was minimal.

2. To reduce the likelihood that the respondent would guess the purpose of the survey and to reduce redundancy in responses, it was decided to limit the number of interviews conducted with any one respondent to two in a given year.

3. An attempt was made to ask each respondent about the value of programming on up to three types of retransmitted distant signals actually carried by the respondent's systems, i.e., a superstation such as WPIX or the cable network WTBS, a Canadian programming station, and an independent station. In the vast majority of cases, respondents evaluated programming on two or three different signals. In 2000 and 2003, every respondent evaluated programming on at least two different signals, while in only five cases in 2001 and one case in 2002 did a respondent evaluate a Canadian signal alone. Even in these few cases, respondents were asked about superstation and independent station carriage in the signal verification section of the questionnaire. Thus, it is unlikely that respondents knew whether the survey was intended to concentrate on any one type of signal or on multiple and different types of signals.

4. The surveys asked about six different types of programming carried on each signal (plus an “other” category). For the United States superstations and independent stations, the programming categories were: (1) live professional and college team sports; (2) news, public affairs, children's programs, and talk shows produced by and shown on the station; (3) syndicated shows, series, and specials other than children's or religious programs; (4) movies; (5) syndicated children's programming; (6) devotional and religious programming; and (7) other programming.
For the Canadian signals, programming categories were: (1) live professional and college team sports, excluding Canadian Football League games; (2) Canadian network- and station-produced news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs; (3) U.S. syndicated series, movies, and specials; (4) Canadian-produced sports programming such as the Olympics, Canadian Football League games, skating, skiing, tennis, and auto racing; (5) Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials not including children's programming; (6) Canadian-produced children's programming; and (7) other programming.

Thus, each respondent was asked about six specific and different types of programming carried on, for most respondents, each of two or three different types of signals. This decreases the chances that respondents would ascertain that the surveys were concerned with the value of Canadian-produced programming.

In sum, four approaches were used to guard against respondents guessing the purpose of the surveys. First, the surveys were "double-blind." That is, neither the interviewers nor the respondents knew the purpose or sponsor of the survey. Second, no respondent was interviewed more than twice in one year about retransmitting Canadian signals reducing both the chance of guessing the purpose of the survey and redundancy in responses. Third, the vast majority of respondents were asked to evaluate the value of different types of programming on at least two retransmitted distant signals. This decreases the likelihood that respondents would guess that the focus was on the Canadian signal. Finally, the respondents were asked about the value of a variety of specific types of programming on each signal. The fact that the six specific programming categories were similar (although not identical) across signals further decreases the likelihood that respondents would detect the interest in Canadian-produced programming.

Neither we, nor the supervisors, observed any inquiry associated with Canadian programming, Canadian stations, or the Canadian Claimants as interviews were monitored in 2000, 2001, 2002, or 2003. Moreover, the interviewers reported no inquiries associated with Canadian programming, Canadian stations, or the Canadian Claimants. Over the years, participants did occasionally inquire or speculate as to the sponsor or purpose of these surveys. When participants did comment or inquire, typically they volunteered "the government" or a competing cable company as the likely sponsor. Several respondents also volunteered comments indicating that other survey research organizations had recently contacted their cable systems. With increasing frequency, potential respondents refusing to participate cite “corporate” policies developed to address numerous requests for management participation in similar studies.

Approach used to distinguish unique value of Canadian programming. The entire questionnaire was developed to provide an unbiased estimate of the unique value of Canadian-produced programming:

1. The way in which the value of programming on a signal was assessed was through the use of a 100-point constant sum scale. The respondent was asked to "assume the total value of all the programming now carried on __ __ __ __ ³ equals 100 percent. I'll read a list of seven different program categories. I'll give you a chance to think about each one and jot them down if you wish. Then, I will read the list again and get your estimates of each category's value. The sum must total to 100 percent.” Examples of the survey questionnaires⁴ are provided in Appendix 5.

After reading the list of programming categories, the interviewer asked, “What percentage, if any, of the total value of programming carried on __ __ __ __ would you say is accounted for by . . . .?”

³ When this question was read during the interview, these dashes were replaced by the signal’s call letters.

⁴ Questionnaire forms reflect the language in which Canadian programming on a particular signal was retransmitted. In 2000, 2001, and 2002 for each of the English and French signal versions one of two questionnaire forms was used. These forms differ in terms of how superstation carriage was verified. One form anticipates carriage of one or more distant superstations and/or independent stations. The other form anticipates the carriage of WTBS. In 2003, we returned to two forms, i.e., English-language and French-language, after it became apparent that the extra WTBS verification step was unnecessary.
It should be noted that the purpose of the 100-point constant sum scale was clear to respondents and easy for them to use. The relative value of programming carried on each of the specific signals evaluated was clearly communicated by the points they assigned to each category. Thus, this scale is likely to provide an accurate measure of their perceptions of the value of different types of programming on each of the specific signals evaluated.

2. To eliminate effects on responses due to the order in which questions were asked, the order in which the various types of programming content was evaluated was varied systematically.

Thus, several steps were taken to increase confidence that the perceptions of the value of Canadian programming were being measured accurately. The value of categories of programming was assessed by having respondents allocate 100 points across programming categories. The purpose of the 100-point scale was clear to respondents and easy for them to use, and thus, responses are likely to accurately reflect their perceptions of the value of different types of programming. To eliminate order bias, the starting point for asking the series of questions on programming value was varied across respondents.

Summary of methodological decisions. In developing a research methodology to assess the value of Canadian-produced programming, we attempted to design a survey instrument that was free from biased or leading questions, to develop an approach which would provide the maximum number of respondents while minimizing the biases which can occur when respondents and interviewers know the purpose of the research, and to develop questions that were relevant given the issues under investigation and simultaneously, understandable to respondents. The results follow.

IV. RESULTS

This Results section is divided into three categories: (1) a discussion of the value of Canadian programming; (2) presentation of findings regarding programming on superstations and independent stations; and (3) summary information about the work experience respondents have had making programming decisions for cable systems.

The value of Canadian programming. Table 1 summarizes the respondents' perceptions of the value of the different types of programming shown on Canadian signals for the years 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003.

There are three important findings in Table 1:

1. For the years 2000 through 2003, Canadian programming was valued at approximately 59%, 64%, 59%, and 59%, respectively, of the total value of the programming shown on Canadian signals.

For 2000, the sum of the approximate values assigned to categories of Canadian programming (i.e., news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs [17%], Canadian-produced sports programming [20%], Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials [13%], and Canadian-produced children's programming [9%]) is 59%.

For 2001, the sum of the approximate values assigned to categories of Canadian programming (i.e., news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs [20%], Canadian-produced sports programming [24%], Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials [13%], and Canadian-produced children's programming [7%]) is 64%.

5 In addition to the findings discussed in detail here, Table 5 reports the average value of programming shown on English-language Canadian signals. Table 6 reports the average value of programming shown on French-language Canadian signals. Table 7 reports the average value of programming shown on Canadian signals when Signal A was a superstation and/or Signal C was an independent station or when a Canadian signal was evaluated alone. Table 8 reports the average value of programming shown on Canadian signals when WTBS served as signal A or C. All tables are for years 2000 through 2003 and can be found in Appendix 6.
For 2002, the sum of the approximate values assigned to categories of Canadian programming (i.e., news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs [17%], Canadian-produced sports programming [22%], Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials [11%], and Canadian-produced children's programming [8%]) is 59%.

For 2003, the sum of the approximate values assigned to categories of Canadian programming (i.e., news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs [19%], Canadian-produced sports programming [19%], Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials [13%], and Canadian-produced children's programming [8%]) is 59%.

2. For the years 2000 through 2003, live professional and college team sports, excluding Canadian Football League games, shown on Canadian signals were valued at approximately 26%, 26%, 31%, and 28%, respectively.

3. For the years 2000 through 2003, U.S. syndicated series, movies, and specials contributed approximately 14%, 9%, 10%, and 10%, respectively, to the value of the programming shown on Canadian signal.

The results reported in Table 1 have several implications. The first and most obvious is that most cable operators appear to be well aware of the variety of programming available on the Canadian signal and able to assign value to the different components of the signal. Second, the value of the Canadian-produced programming (on average, approximately 60%) is substantially more than the value of live professional and college team sports, excluding Canadian Football League games (on average, approximately 27%). Third, the value of Canadian-produced programming (on average, approximately 60%) is substantially more than the value of U.S. syndicated series, movies, and specials (on average, approximately 11%).
The value of programming on super- and independent stations. The survey results for the values assigned to different types of programming shown on superstations and independent stations are summarized in Tables 2 and 3, respectively. The important findings from these tables are as follows:

1. For superstations, live professional and college team sports were valued at approximately 30%, 29%, 29%, and 25%, respectively, during the years 2000 through 2003. For independent stations, live professional and college team sports were valued at approximately 29%, 30%, 23%, and 30% during the same years.

Thus, live professional and college team sports were valued, on average, at approximately 28% for superstations, approximately 28% for independent stations, and approximately 27% on Canadian signals.

2. Local news, public affairs, children's programs, and talk shows produced by, and shown exclusively on, the station were valued at approximately 14%, 13%, 16%, and 12% on the superstations and approximately 21%, 25%, 22%, and 20% on the independent stations, respectively, during the years 2000 through 2003. Using a slightly different category, the comparable Canadian signal values were approximately 17%, 20%, 17%, and 19% during the same years.

Thus, local news, public affairs, children's programs, and talk shows produced by, and shown exclusively on, the station were valued, on average, at approximately 14% on the superstations and approximately 22% on the independent stations. Using a slightly different category, the comparable Canadian signal value was, on average, approximately 18%.

3. Syndicated shows, series, and specials other than children's or religious programs on the superstations were valued at approximately 17%, 19%, 17%, and 19% respectively, for the years 2000 through 2003. For the same years, movies on superstations were valued at approximately 24%, 24%, 23%, and 24%.
On the independent stations syndicated shows, series, and specials other than children's or religious programs were valued at approximately 15%, 15%, 21%, and 18%, and movies were valued at approximately 16%, 16%, 16%, and 12%.

Thus, the total value, on average, for movies and syndicated series was approximately 41% on the superstations and approximately 33% on the independent stations. For the Canadian signals, U.S. movies and syndicated series were combined into one category. On average, this category was valued at approximately 11%. Thus, there are substantial differences in the value of movies and syndicated series relative to other superstation, independent, and Canadian signal programming. Cable operators perceive U.S. syndicated series and movies shown on Canadian television as providing much less value than the same type of programming shown on U.S. stations.

4. Devotional and religious programming was valued at about 3%, 4%, 5% and 4% on the superstations and at about 4%, 4%, 8%, and 5% on the independent stations, respectively, during the years 2000 through 2003. There is no comparable category for Canadian signals.

These results suggest that the value of Canadian signal resides primarily in Canadian-produced programming for two reasons. First, the total value of Canadian-produced programming (on average, about 60%) exceeds the value of professional and college team sports (on average, about 27%) on Canadian signals. Second, U.S. movies and syndicated series are valued, on average, at approximately 11% on Canadian signals as compared to 41% on the superstations and 33% on the independent stations. This 11% value of U.S. movies and syndicated series is substantially lower than the 60% total value of Canadian-produced programming on Canadian signals and demonstrates that U.S. programming is not a substantial factor in cable system operators' decisions to import a Canadian signal.
Work experience of respondents. Table 4 summarizes what we learned about the work experience of the respondents to the 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003 surveys. The important point from Table 4 is that the respondents are quite experienced. That is, the average respondent had worked in the cable television industry for about 18 years and had been responsible for deciding which distant signals to retransmit for about eight years. Therefore, these respondents should provide an accurate estimate of the value of Canadian produced programming.

V. CONCLUSIONS

In our opinion, these results indicate that cable system operators retransmit the Canadian signals primarily for their unique Canadian programming rather than for live professional and college team sports or U.S. syndicated series and movies already available on U.S. television.

The value of Canadian programming greatly exceeds that of live professional and college team sports and U.S. syndicated series and movies. During this period, Canadian programming constituted about 60% of the total programming value provided by imported Canadian signals.

The Longitudinal Value of Canadian Programming to Cable Systems
In the United States 1996 to 2003

December 2008
Introduction:

1. This report presents and discusses the results of eight (8) surveys of United States Form 3 cable system operators who retransmitted Canadian television stations as distant signals during the years 1996 to 2003. These studies, and the present one, were commissioned by the Canadian Claimants Group.

2. The objective of this research is to examine the stability and/or robustness of the value of Canadian programming on Canadian distant signals retransmitted by U.S. Form 3 cable system operators over time.

3. This report includes the following four sections:
   - Summary of Annual Survey Methodology
   - Summary of Longitudinal Methodology
   - Results
   - Conclusions

Summary of Annual Survey Methodology:

4. In the years 1996 to 2003, surveys of the eligible population of Form 3 cable systems retransmitting either a distant English-language or distant French-language Canadian signal were conducted. Detailed discussions of these efforts are available in two reports by Gary T. Ford and Debra J. Ringold, submitted to the Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panel (in 2002) and to the Copyright Royalty Board (in 2009).

5. The surveys were conducted with the persons responsible for deciding which distant signals their cable systems retransmit. Respondents were experienced in making these decisions. The vast majority identified themselves as the individual responsible for making program budget decisions or recommendations.

6. Using a 100-point constant sum scale, the surveys asked about the value of seven different types of programming carried on a Canadian signal randomly chosen from those Canadian signals retransmitted by the cable system: (1) live professional and college team sports, excluding Canadian Football League games; (2) Canadian produced news, public affairs, religious, and documentary programs; (3) U.S. syndicated series, movies, and specials; (4) sports programming such as the Olympics, Canadian Football League games, skating, skiing, tennis, and auto racing; (5) Canadian-produced series, movies, arts and variety shows, and specials; (6) Canadian-produced children’s programming; and (7) other programming. This approach allowed a signal-specific determination of the relative value of Canadian-produced programming compared to programming produced by other claimants on the same signal.

7. Similar categories of programming shown on a randomly chosen superstation or WTBS and a randomly chosen U.S. independent station carried by the respondents' systems were also evaluated to reduce the chances that respondents would guess the survey purpose or sponsor.

8. While the categories used to describe superstation or WTBS, Canadian, and independent signal programming are reasonably analogous, differences in category descriptions reflect different types of programming on different types of signals. In addition, questionnaire forms reflect the language, French or English, in which Canadian programming is retransmitted by a particular signal.

Summary of Longitudinal Methodology:

9. A longitudinal study involves analyzing data collected using the same methodology to ask the same population of respondents the same question(s) over time. It is useful in evaluating the stability and/or robustness of an estimate.

10. Stability is evidence of the reliability of a measure and is determined by surveying the same population of respondents using the same methodology over time. Stability is achieved when measure(s) reveal consistent response(s) over time.

11. Robustness is further evidence of the reliability of a measure and is determined by surveying the same population of respondents using the same methodology over time under differing conditions. Thus, robustness of an estimate refers to stability over time despite changes in conditions such as economic/political circumstances, industry structure, survey research contractors, individual respondents, and survey response rates. Robustness is achieved when measure(s) reveal consistent response(s) over time despite change.

12. Longitudinal studies also permit the evaluation of error in an estimate. The differences between the (in this case, annual) observed values of a measure and the long-run average of the observed values in repetitions of the measurement are informative. The smaller the difference between each (annual) estimate and the long-run average of the estimate, the less error associated with the estimate.

13. During the years 1996 to 2003, persons responsible for deciding which distant signals their cable systems retransmit at Form 3 cable systems retransmitting a distant Canadian signal were surveyed. The same study methodology was used in each of the eight (8) studies.

Results:

14. During the years 1996 to 2003, response rates varied from 58% to 82% and two different survey research contractors were used. With such high response rates to each individual survey, and collectively across all surveys, nonresponse bias is unlikely.

15. During the years 1996 to 2003, economic and political circumstances varied and a number of Form 3 cable systems retransmitting a distant Canadian signal came under new ownership, were the object of mergers, and/or changed status with respect to these hearings. During this period, a number of Form 3 systems retransmitting a distant Canadian signal changed individuals responsible for selecting distant signals for retransmission, and participated some years but refused in other years.

16. During the years 1996 to 2003, cable system operators who transmitted Canadian signals reported that Canadian programming constituted from 58% to 64% of the total programming value provided by imported Canadian signals. A weighted average of these results reveals that, for this period, Canadian programming constituted about 60% of the total programming value provided by imported Canadian signals. Inspection of Figure 1, attached, reveals that the relative value of Canadian programming on distant Canadian signals to cable systems during the period 1996 to 2003 is remarkably stable, robust, and error free.
Conclusions:

17. In my opinion, these results are both stable and robust and therefore, can be relied upon to accurately estimate the actual value of Canadian programming on distant Canadian signals imported by cable systems in the U.S.

18. These surveys strongly support the conclusion that cable system operators who retransmit Canadian signals do so primarily for their unique Canadian programming.

19. Over an eight (8) year period, Canadian programming constituted, on average, about 60% of the total programming value provided by imported Canadian signals.

INTRODUCTION

My name is Stephen Stohn. I live in Toronto, Ontario and am the President of Epitome Pictures Inc., where I am active in all aspects of the financing and production of the audiovisual works created by Epitome.

I have worked in the entertainment industry for over 40 years commencing with part-time appearances as a performing artist, continuing with active work as a songwriter (including two songs that reached the Canadian Top-10, Maybe Your Heart and Once In A Long Time), and a primary career as an entertainment and copyright lawyer since being called to the Ontario Bar in 1979.

As a founding partner in the entertainment law firm Stohn Hay Cafazzo Dembroski Richmond LLP, I provide strategic legal advice to performers, advertising agencies, merchandisers, recording artists, songwriters, multimedia/internet creators, broadcasters and film and television producers. I am one of six entertainment lawyers named in the 2009 Lexpert American Lawyer Guide to the Leading 500 Lawyers in Canada.

I have been Executive Producer for all episodes of the television series Degrassi: The Next Generation, Liberty Street, and Instant Star and their related webisodes, mobisodes, and web sites. For over fifteen years I have been Executive Producer of the telecast of Canada's music awards show, The Juno Awards, and was Executive Producer of the lifestyle television series Savoir Faire and Room Service. I was also Executive Producer of Riverdale, English Canada's first prime-time soap opera, as well as two feature films, Me? and The Clown Murders. I was legal counsel for all episodes of the television series Degrassi Junior High and Degrassi High, and the movie-of-the-week School's Out.

I have appeared on a number of occasions as an expert witness before the Copyright Board of Canada. I am currently Chair of The Canadian Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, and serve as a Director of each of the Ontario Media Development Corporation, ISAN Canada, the Canadian Retransmission Collective, and Producers Audiovisual Collective of Canada, and am Co-Chair of the Copyright and International Policy Committee of the Canadian Film and Television Production Association.

EPITOME'S PRODUCTIONS (LIST AND AWARDS)

Since 1980, Epitome Pictures Inc. and related companies have been producing award-winning television and educational programs, including The Kids of Degrassi Street (26 episodes), Degrassi Junior High (26 episodes), and Degrassi High (39 episodes). These series were all broadcast on CBC for many years commencing in 1980, and established a strong presence there in a combination of original and repeat broadcasts. Degrassi Junior High and Degrassi High were fixtures for many years on PBS in the United States. Most notably among much international recognition, these series won two international Emmy Awards, nine Gemini Awards, and two Prix Jeunesse.

Degrassi continued in the movie-of-the-week School's Out! and in a series of six documentaries entitled Degrassi Talks.

In the mid-1990's, Epitome produced Liberty Street (26 episodes) and also bought a 100,000 sq. ft. warehouse, converting it into a state of the art digital single-purpose studio, where Epitome produced English-Canada’s first prime-time soap opera, Riverdale (96 episodes). Both series were broadcast on CBC.

Four seasons of Epitome’s acclaimed music drama series Instant Star were also produced in our studio.

The studio is presently home to the youth-oriented series Degrassi: The Next Generation, whose eighth season is now airing on CTV in Canada and The N in the United States. (The N is a cable service for teens.) The series has received a number of awards including 11 Gemini Awards, seven Directors Guild of Canada Awards, two Teen Choice Awards and the U.S. Television Critics Award.

A complete list of the awards won by these series is included in Exhibit CDN-3-A.

During the period 2000 – 2003, Degrassi Junior High, Degrassi High, School’s Out, Riverdale, and Degrassi: The Next Generation were all broadcast on Canadian free over-the-air signals. In particular, both Degrassi Junior High and Degrassi High were broadcast on CBC in the year 2000. CBC aired Riverdale during 2000 and 2001. And of course Degrassi: The Next Generation began its successful run on CTV in 2001.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS

Riverdale is English-Canada’s first prime-time soap-opera, and follows the ups-and-downs of three generations of Canadian families, friends and enemies thrust awkwardly together in a Toronto downtown community.

Degrassi Junior High follows a lively group of ethnically and culturally diverse inner-city junior high students as they grapple with both serious and not-so-serious adolescent issues.

Degrassi High trails these students as they enter High School. They can no longer call themselves children, but aren’t yet ready to take on fully the responsibilities of being adult.

These two Degrassi series were the first popular series we are aware of to deal with teen problems from the teen perspective. Our aim was to produce a series that was not only accessible and entertaining and high quality, but was completely distinctive from other programming—so these series deal with many edgy issues and themes, always from the perspective of the teenager involved, and always following the theme that we each have the power to make choices, but every choice has consequences.

School’s Out depicts the summer of 1992 as the students graduate from high school and start facing the real world.

Degrassi: The Next Generation picks up the thread of life at Degrassi nearly a decade later. When we began developing Degrassi: The Next Generation, we realized that the world facing teenagers in the twenty-first century was radically different in many ways from that inhabited by our characters in Degrassi Junior High and Degrassi High, largely because of the impact of technology. But interestingly, we found the same issues being faced by the teens of today. This series has addressed some very sensitive topics, such as date rape and abortion. With these subjects we are very careful to have our scripts reviewed by experts. Exhibit CDN-3-B is some promotional material depicting Degrassi: The Next Generation.
ACCLAIM FOR DEGRASSI: THE NEXT GENERATION

I mentioned earlier that Degrassi: The Next Generation was licensed to The N for transmission during the period 2000 – 2003. In fact it was referred to as The N’s signature series. It was their highest rated show, well received by American viewers and reviewers. A sample of quotes follow:

- “Degrassi Is tha Best Teen TV N da WRLD!”
  New York Times Magazine (March 20, 2005)
- “High school soap ‘Degrassi’ rings true to teens”
  Star-Telegram (Fort Worth/Dallas,TX) (October 1, 2004)
- “Cult-like allegiance”
  Washington Post (September 26, 2004)
- “Watch (please!) and you’ll see everything that makes Degrassi TV’s gutsiest teen drama.”
  Entertainment Weekly (December 3, 2004)
- “Degrassi’s frank, melodrama-free writing and well-chosen cast – who shockingly, actually look and act like kids – save it from earnest afterschool specialdom.”
  Time Magazine (USA) (June 26, 2005)
- “What separates the show from other teen programming is its outright determination to deal with shocking topics with no sugarcoating.”
  abcnnews.com (October 18, 2005)

These reviews and articles are echoed by enormous feedback from fans on our www.degrassi.tv website (which has over 800,000 registered users) and on the website operated by The N, www.the-n.com. Fans overwhelmingly indicate not only how entertaining Degrassi is to them, but also how realistic and different it is from other series on television—and in many heart-warming instances how it has changed their lives.

A short promotional video describing Degrassi: The Next Generation and prepared by The N is included in Exhibit CDN-3-C.

INTERNATIONAL SUCCESS

The various Degrassi series have also been distributed widely outside the United States and Canada. Degrassi Junior High and Degrassi High have been broadcast in 50 countries around the world, and Degrassi: The Next Generation has been broadcast in 147 countries around the world. A compete list of countries that have licensed our productions for broadcast is included in Exhibit CDN-3-D.

CONCLUSION

Epitome is not a large company. We are a small private business without access to the publicly-traded capital markets. Part of the reason we have been able to continue our productions for so many years is that we derive revenue for the use of our copyrighted works from every source that we can. We are what might be called a “mom-and-pop” production company that has been fortunate enough to resonate with audiences over the past thirty years in Canada, the United States, and around the world, not by producing “blockbuster” mass entertainment—but rather by concentrating on producing distinctive and original high-quality programming with a heart and a message of hope.
